CORPORATE UNITED VICE PRESIDENT NAMED 2008 “PRO TO KNOW”

Supply & Demand Chain Executive names David Clevenger “Pro to Know” for the second consecutive year.

CLEVELAND — March 17, 2008 — David Clevenger, vice president of Corporate United, the nation’s leading group purchasing organization, has been selected a Supply & Demand Chain Executive 2008 “Pro to Know” in the sourcing/procurement category.

About Supply & Demand Chain Executive

Supply & Demand Chain Executive, the executive's user manual for successful supply and demand chain transformation, honors the industry’s leaders who have made an outstanding contribution to the field of supply and demand chain management the credit they deserve through the “Pros to Know” list.

Clevenger was named a “Pro to Know” for his vision of the 21st century supply chain, including his belief that the future of spend management lies in a combination of advanced supplier and contract management, combined with analytics to identify and demonstrate a new generation of savings to buying organizations. He has also been recognized for introducing advanced supplier and contract management techniques and tools to Corporate United’s members, resulting in cost savings and process improvements throughout their organizations. Clevenger was also named a “Pro to Know” in 2007.

"This year's Provider “Pros to Know” have shown themselves to be thought-leaders in their respective supply chain segments," said Andrew K. Reese, editor of Supply &

Demand Chain Executive. "Their efforts in developing the tools and processes necessary for supply chain transformation, and in promoting new approaches to supply chain enablement, are helping raise Supply Chain's status within the enterprise and have earned them a place on this year's Provider Pros listing."

"We are very pleased to have one of our own executives recognized as a supply chain industry leader and visionary," says Gregg Mylett, Corporate United president. "David's extensive experience in indirect spend management, e-sourcing and supply chain consulting makes him an asset to our company and the industry."

Clevenger leads the operations, category management and marketing functions at Corporate United.
